

Second Acts

The coolest side gig in the acting business: restaurateur. These big stars have a place to call their own.

ILLUSTRATION BY KATHRYN RATHKE

DAN AYKROYD

Dan cofounded the original House of Blues in Cambridge, MA, and now owns a dozen of them across the country (houseofblues.com), all serving Southern specialties like jambalaya and shrimp and grits.

QUENTIN TARANTINO

The Django Unchained director is part-owner of a modern Korean restaurant, Dō Hwa, in Manhattan's West Village (55 Carmine St.; dohwanyc.com) where you can grill your meat at the table.

TY BURRELL

Though his Modern Family character is a goofball, Ty is pretty serious about food and beer. His Bavarian-style Beer Bar in Salt Lake City (161 East 200 South; 801-355-2287) has more than 20 craft brews on tap; he also co-owns the speakeasy Bar-X (pictured) next door.

KEVIN COSTNER

Kevin has two restaurants, Diamond Lil's and Jake's, at the frontier-themed Midnight Star Casino in Deadwood, SD (677 Main St.; themidnightstar.com); both were inspired by the saloons of the late 1800s. Lil's (pictured) has some of Kevin's big-screen costumes on display.

FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA

Along with Francis Ford Coppola Winery in Northern California, the legendary director-producer also owns Cafe Zoetrope in San Francisco's North Beach neighborhood (916 Kearny St.; cafecoppola.com). The Italian spot, named after his production company, is known for its pizza.

JUSTIN TIMBERLAKE

The menu at the New York City barbecue restaurant Southern Hospitality (645 Ninth Ave.; southernhospitalitybbq.com) taps into JT's Memphis roots: wet- and dry-rubbed ribs, pulled pork and baked beans. Channing Tatum has dined here, as have several members of the New York Yankees.

EVA LONGORIA

The former Desperate Housewives star paired up with chef Todd English to open Beso (6350 Hollywood Blvd.; besohollywood.com), a Latin twist on a modern steakhouse. If you go, you might recognize the interior: The Los Angeles restaurant has appeared in New Girl and How to Get Away with Murder.

ROBERT DE NIRO

De Niro's GoodFellas character said one of life's greatest lessons is to "Always keep your mouth shut." The rule doesn't apply when eating at De Niro's own NYC restaurants. He's part-owner of Locanda Verde (377 Greenwich St.; locandaverdenyc.com), Tribeca Grill (pictured; 375 Greenwich St.; myriadrestaurantgroup.com) and the original Nobu (105 Hudson St.; noburestaurants.com).

ROBERT REDFORD

Park City, UT, residents think of this acting-directing-producing superstar as the guy who started Zoom (660 Main St.; zoomparkcity.com), a local modern-American restaurant. Prime star-watching happens during the Sundance Film Festival. Christina Hendricks and Chloë Grace Moretz were spotted last year.

RICHARD GERE

Richard recently partnered with chef Michael White to revamp the Italian menu at Campagna (pictured), the restaurant at the actor's Bedford Post Inn in New York's Westchester County (Old Post Rd., Bedford, NY; bedfordpostinn.com). The chef also overhauled the breakfast and brunch menu served at the inn's more casual spot, The Barn.

PHOTOS: FROM LEFT, COURTESY OF HOUSE OF BLUES; ARARAT CHINARIAN; DAVID NEWKIRK; MONTE ALENDE; BRIAN ORNDORF; COURTESY OF SOUTHERN HOSPITALITY; AWAY GRAVES; EVAN SUNG; CARLA BOECKLIN; ANTHONY JACKSON.